

For the past 20 years, Sarnia Lambton Workforce Development Board has been committed to identifying needs and finding solutions to attract and retain a viable workforce. We produce an annual Local Labour Market Plan report, which contains:

- up-to-date data on the local workforce and businesses,
- in-depth coverage of specific industries, and
- community actions to address workforce issues identified by local businesses, educators and service providers.

The Local Labour Market Plan Report informs students, job seekers, local district school boards, the local college, employment service providers, and other organizations.

An important part of this report is the input gathered from local businesses that helps us better understand specific industries and workforce issues.

We would like to speak with you about:

- workforce planning (e.g., recruitment, retention)
- skills of employees and applicants (e.g., changes, skills gap)
- community planning (e.g., actions undertaken by community to help)
